What Is Surebet, and How Does TitanArb Help You Make Money?

Normally, when you bet on football, you choose a team to win. If your team loses, you lose your money.

But surebet works differently.

Imagine Manchester United vs Chelsea are playing a football match.

Two betting platforms offer different opportunities:

bet365

- Bet365: Both teams to score — YES, odds 2.10

Stake

- Stake: Both teams to score — NO, odds 2.10

Let's say you have $100.

You place $50 on Bet365 and $50 on Stake.

If both teams score, Bet365 pays you $105.

If both teams don't score, Stake pays you $105.

Either way, you receive $105, giving you a theoretical $5 profit before fees, provided both bets are accepted at those odds and the rules match.

Now, How Does TitanArb Help?

Finding these opportunities manually takes time. Sometimes the odds change before you can place both bets.

TitanArb is designed to handle this automatically.

You create an account, fund it, and activate the service. TitanArb searches for price differences and automatically attempts qualifying trades without requiring you to place each bet yourself.

Important: Bet365 and Stake are only examples to explain surebet. TitanArb is designed to trade on supported decentralized markets such as Azuro, Thales, BetDEX and Polymarket.

In simple terms: TitanArb helps you pursue small arbitrage opportunities through automation, even when you're busy with other activities.
